Should I Take the ACT or SAT?

Students are increasingly taking both the SAT and ACT. Changes made to the SAT in 2016 have made it easier than ever to prep for both tests concurrently—and earn competitive scores on both!

The best way to decide if taking the SAT, ACT, or both tests is right for you is to take a timed full-length practice test of each type. Since the content and style of the SAT and ACT are very similar, factors like how you handle time pressure and what types of questions you find most challenging can help you determine which test is a better fit. Try our QUIZ: SAT, ACT, or Both? to learn more.

Helix offers practice tests for both exams and will offer more in Fall 2019

How is the test score used to determine college admissions?

Different Colleges use it different ways:

- California Community Colleges use it for Placement in Math and English
 - If you score above a 570 Math and a 550 English, then you are eligible to enroll in college level courses
- California State Universities use it for Admissions and Placement
 - Admissions uses it as part of a formula is your A-G 10 - 11 GPA to determine your eligibility
 - They also Super Score (Best English/Math no matter the testing date)
 - Placement uses it just like a Community College
 - If you score above a 570 Math and a 550 English, then you are exempt mandatory summer school

How is the test score used to determine college admissions?

Different Colleges use it different ways:

- University of California uses it for admissions only
 - One of the 14 elements the UC Campuses consider is your SAT or ACT score
 - They will use the best total score from ONE testing date
- Private/Out of State Schools use it in varying forms
 - They all will use it as part of the admissions decision and some for placement
 - Not all schools require the test, but if you share it they will use it. Sometimes it can help you get admitted.
