What is SBAC?

Smarter Balanced is the result of state education agency staff, teachers, higher education faculty, and other educators working together to create a "best of the best" assessment system with the ultimate goal of increasing the number of students who are well prepared for college and careers.

This effort began with the recognition that most assessment systems were disjointed, outdated, and did not offer a cohesive set of tools to help educators improve teaching and learning. In 2010, 30 states came together to submit a grant application to create a system that would redefine assessments to feature the following characteristics:

- Conducted online and customizable for students
- · Composed of test questions that measure essential skills such as critical thinking, writing, and problem-solving
- Provides the widest array of features ever assembled to ensure testing is fair for all student
- Supports teachers in professional development and in-class assessment tools

The consortium of states that developed Smarter Balanced were awarded a $178 million federal grant, with the state of Washington acting as the fiscal agent. Over the next four years, these states and educators from across the country built an assessment system that would make history by becoming the most widely used test in the United States.

In 2014, as the federal grant was ending, Smarter Balanced became a public agency housed at the University of California-Los Angeles (UCLA) Graduate School of Education and Information Studies. Smarter Balanced is now funded by the states that use its system. It is governed by its membership, which sets its budget and policies, operates the system, and continues to support research and development to further improve assessment.

Mr. Burns, A Post-Electric Play

What happens to pop culture after the fall of human civilization? What about 7 years after the fall? Or even 75 years? Mr. Burns, a Post-Electric Play, endeavors to find out. When nuclear power plants across the country begin to "go up", a small group of survivors gather in the woods and begin to recount an episode of The Simpsons. Over the course of the play's three acts and three-quarters of a century time-span, casual storytelling evolves into ritual, and one Simpsons episode evolves into a myth and legend for a postapocalyptic world.

*Mr. Burns may not be appropriate for small children. It contains realistic gunfire and depictions of violence*

2018 Social Media Safety Webinar

Screen time for tweens and teens is a fact of life these days. According to a recent study from the Pew Research Center, teen cell phone access is at an all time high with 95% of teens reporting they own or can access a smartphone

Banning technology won't help prepare your children for their future. Instead, we recommend giving them limited access to screens, monitoring their activity, and having regular digital safety discussions together
